INDUSTRIAL AND MANUFACTURING

“Andy Warhol's Factory studio made Campbell's Soup tin, with its stylish red and white label, a pop icon. But ever since its invention in 1897 the condensed delicacy had been a national favourite. Like Henry Ford once said, it's the product that pays the wages and Angel understand that maintaining an operation that runs smooth as a silk screen squeegee is the secret to manufacturing and industrial success.”

The manufacturers' organisation EEF reports that four in five firms are struggling to fill their vacancies. Not only this, but the government is now repositioning manufacturing as “an area of potentially significant expansion”.
